

workers ACTION

No. 75 Oct. 15-22, 1977 10p

Inside
 Labour conference 1977 page 3
 The NP's Hillierite face exposed pages 4-5
 Seamus Costello and the dilemmas of Irish republicanism page 6
 Car workers against the 10% hourly funds and Layard pages 7 and 8

GRUNWICK
 Be there
 October 17th
 Mass picket
 all day

THE POLICE AND THE NATIONAL FRONT: HOW MANY SECRET CONTACTS?

THE CREF Committee of Greater Manchester, James Anderson, has felt obliged to make a public appeal for the support of the National Front for all a fascist demonstration in Manchester last Saturday. But, the fact he had no money and he might have to do the same thing again.

The anti-fascist group of the march. They kept the march a "closed" affair. They concealed facts from the public and on behalf of those planning a demonstration, fascist demonstrators. They set the "demonstration" last night to bring a "closed" meeting for the site of the fascist march.

1,000 people gathered one night in Lewisham, Manchester, of a few hundred people. 2,000 police marched to arrest marchers from a police car. They were taken to the police station and held. 2,000 police were needed to control a crowd of 2,000 people.

In August, in Lewisham, an anti-fascist demonstration resulted in a police car being overturned. The police were taken to the police station and held. 2,000 police were needed to control a crowd of 2,000 people.

In Manchester, the police took that the only way they could ensure the safety of the march was to bring in a large number of police and to substantiating themselves for marchers. These many other secret contacts have the police get much longer will many contacts from Manchester to be linked with the idea that the march can be held with the police being used to implement the march.

"Our opponents in the establishment would be quite frightened if they knew how much sympathy we have in the police!"
 — John Tyndall, National Front chairman

SP